

E-mail Invitation

An e-mail invitation is a quick way to let friends know about an event. Like an invitation sent by regular mail, an e-mail invitation tells when and where the event is taking place, along with any other useful information. Unlike a regular invitation, it travels instantly, via the Internet.

Come to a Party!

Person invited is named.

Hey Jeanine,

Tone is lively and friendly.

Have you ever wanted to star in a fairy tale? Here's your chance! I'm having a party at my house next week, and you're invited. Everyone has to come as a favorite character from a fairy tale. You could be Cinderella, the Big Bad Wolf, Rapunzel, or Snow White's mean stepmother. You could even be that horned toad we read about in class last week!

Important information is clearly set out.

Here are the details:

When: Saturday, December 3 at 6:30 P.M.

Where: 47 Columbus Street

There'll be dessert and punch.

RSVP (That means let me know if you can make it.) Start working on your costume!
