

Using Persuasive Words

One way to persuade a reader to agree with you is to use persuasive words. Some persuasive words are in favor of something, such as important, best, and great. Some are against something, such as awful, worst, and terrible. Words such as should and must are also persuasive.

You must read this incredible book.

No one should watch that awful show.

Directions Write the persuasive words or phrases that the writer uses in the following paragraphs.

I've just seen the most amazing movie. It's called Journey to the Center of the Earth, and it was made a long time ago. The plot is very exciting. It's about a scientist who leads a group of people underground through an extinct volcano. They have incredible adventures, including fighting some weird-looking dinosaurs. (The special effects are pretty bad!) The end is thrilling. All the people get shot into the air by a volcano.

If you enjoy adventure stories, you should watch this movie.

Directions Write two sentences about each subject below. Use persuasive words.

A bad song

A good soccer team

A popular restaurant
