A group of gophers had an inspiration. They gathered together a huge collection of leaves. It was a strain to carry them into their holes. But gophers need bedding to sleep on during the winter, and those leaves were perfect.

While they worked, an enormous moose with a shiny nose came by.

“What’s all this clutter?” the moose demanded as he scattered the leaves with his big feet.

Phil, a grandfather gopher, spoke up. “For your information, we use leaves for bedding in the winter,” he said.

“Oh, I’m sorry,” said the moose. “I didn’t realize what you were doing.”

2. What word would you use to describe the moose when he first shows up?
