

Time-order Words

Time-order words, such as before and after, tell you when something happens.

After I got my allowance, I went to the store.

Directions Underline the time-order word in each sentence.

1. Yesterday Jon had a money-making idea.
2. First he bought some sturdy paper.
3. Second, he bought some wooden sticks.
4. Third, Jon picked up a ball of string.
5. He looked for some colorful rags later.
6. Jon worked in the garage afterwards.
7. Finally, he had made six kites.
8. Then Jon sold the kites to his friends.

Directions Write two or three sentences about a time when you sold something. Use two or more time-order words to tell when something happened. Possible answer:

Yesterday I made lemonade. Then I sold the lemonade at a stand in front of my house.
