Draw Conclusions

- To draw a conclusion is to think about facts and details and decide something about them.

Directions Read the following passage about chapati. Insert one fact about chapati in each fact box, and then see what conclusion you can draw.

In India, children eat chapati. This is a flat, round, chewy bread. The dough is shaped into a circle and browned on both sides in a very hot frying pan. Then it is held above an open flame for less than a second. This causes the chapati to puff up with steam, like a balloon.
