Sequence

- The sequence of events in a story is the order in which the events occur.

1. What is the sequence of events that goes on in bartering?

People decide what skills or goods they have to offer in trade for skills and goods that they want. People meet and agree to trade, or bargain for a trade, or not have a trade at all.

2. Describe the bartering that took place between the American colonists and Native Americans.

Native Americans bartered animal furs for the cloth, thread, and tools the colonists had.

3. Describe the sequence of events in “Bartering Day” at school.

The students display their items to trade. They decide what they want to barter for. Students find items to trade or keep their own items.

4. Trace the steps the community theater took to advertise its summer play.

The theater offered free office space to a local radio station that needed it in exchange for free advertising.

5. Look at the bartering plan on pages 8 and 9. Write down a sequence of events for how the Smith family might barter with the Jones family.

Mr. Smith could offer his business knowledge to help Mr. Jones in his carpentry business in exchange for Mr. Jones's building him a table. The Jones daughter could tutor the Smith daughters in math in exchange for a sports card.
